I – INTRODUCTION

The year of “the suicide of Europe”?

By ushering in a Union to replace the European Economic Community, the Maastricht Treaty (1992) was supposed to endow this new regional entity with a true political and democratic dimension. Aside from the creation of a single currency, the only truly political project set up by EU leaders has been the attempt to differentiate between "member states" by asserting control of external borders. In other words, defence of the freedom of movement within the EU was founded on the principle of intensifying control of and multiplying hurdles to the mobility of those wishing to enter Europe. The fundamental rights of some are thus predicated on the denial of these rights to others. For nearly fifteen years the Migreurop network has consistently condemned attacks on "the right to leave any country, including one's own country" and fought back against the many forms of detention of migrants. Outside the narrow circle of human rights activists, the "external dimension" of border controls (in particular the agreements with countries called on to play the part of police constable for the EU) and their ramifications in terms of fundamental rights (specifically the right to seek asylum) have however been thought of as “the price we have to pay” to guarantee the freedoms of European citizens.

From 2015, the consequences of refusing to take in those fleeing the wars in Syria and other regions buffeted by multiple crises have heralded a new era for the EU. Not only have its leaders transmogrified the Greek islands into an archipelago of migrant camps but they have lost all negotiating power with regard to leaders who have understood and copied the methodology of their racist policies. This transformation can be seen both internally, when the Hungarian President defends the European logic of locking down external borders and keeping asylum seekers at a distance, with the worst kind of racist extremism, and externally, when the Turkish Premier got as much as he possibly could out of an “agreement” with the EU. In undertaking to limit departures to three million of the refugees present in Turkey, and by agreeing to take back some of the asylum seekers that had made it to Greece from the Aegean coast, he obtained a true “endorsement”. The European Union, who for a long time prided itself on embodying “human rights diplomacy” now turns a blind eye to the abuses perpetrated by the Turkish regime, handling its leader with kid gloves on account of the “migration risk”.

Increasingly coupled with “terrorist threat”, this migration risk know makes it possible to undermine what was once presented as one of the most treasured accomplishments of the European project - freedom of movement within the EU. Numerous internal borders have thus been for a prolonged period (between Italy and Austria, Italy and France, Germany and Denmark, etc.) The return of these barriers marks the advent of a new chapter in the history of Europe, one grounded in fear and rejection. Meanwhile, these security measures fail to satisfy those men and women for whom xenophobic attitudes ought to be driving forces behind public policy.

The 2010a may not be the 1930s, but we are again witnessing the “suicide of Europe”. ¹ If it were only the demise of a regional bloc it would be possible to rise again out of the rubble. For years, through its work to call out and document the treatment meted out to foreign migrants on Europe’s borders, Migreurop has been raising the alarm about basic principles and rights being torn to shreds. The strength of the network and our geographical presence, especially in Africa allows us to act in order to ensure that when Europe jumps into the abyss it doesn’t drag other regions down with it. The “migration compact” - behind this intentionally opaque wording political trade deals are negotiated with countries such as Niger, Sudan, Ethiopia, etc. - thus leads to the strengthening of particularly repressive regimes and at the same time to the closure of intra-African areas of movement, which are absolutely vital for the survival of men and women who use them on a daily basis.

Our analyses and our maps (the publication of the 6th Map of the Camps and the launch of preparation for the 3rd edition of our Atlas des Migrants were key highlights) are all defensive weapons for joint struggles that reach beyond European borders - the same borders that kill men and women in their thousands. We militate with and for these men and women for the sake of rights we all share, in particular the right to move freely.

II – THE MIGREUROP NETWORK

Created in 2002 and recognised as an association governed by French law in November 2005, in 2015 the Migreurop network – headquartered in Paris (France) – comprised forty-seven organisations as well as fifty-five individual members based in seventeen countries in Africa, the Middle East and Europe (see II-Network composition).

The network was created as a result of the mobilisation around the Sangatte camp in the north of France. Between 1999 and 2002, Sangatte was an emblematic figure of migration policies aimed at grouping foreigners together and confining them to areas at the margins of society, away from the influence of democratic institutions.

For this reason, the administrative detention of migrants - the ‘migrant camps’ in the terminology of Migreurop – became one of the network’s first areas of work. A map of migrant camps in Europe was developed, regularly updated since 2003, and in December 2013 an ‘interactive map of migrant detention’ became available online.

More generally, the objectives of the network are to: “identify, raise awareness of, denounce and fight European systems that marginalise those migrants and asylum seekers deemed undesirable”. In this framework, Migreurop was one of the first to popularise the term ‘externalisation’ of EU immigration and asylum policies, to underline the dangers inherent in a process which involves delegating the fight against migration and even the processing of refugee claims to a third country, under the pretext of (unequal) partnership, and to outsource migration controls well in advance of their physical manifestation at European borders.

Against the detention of foreigners and for freedom of movement

The principle demands of the Migreurop network concern the closure of detention facilities reserved for migrants², and “a radical change in migration policy in order to make possible the freedom of all people to come and go and settle, which constitutes an essential corollary to the protection of migrant rights”³. Migreurop works on raising awareness among the activists, the public and, where possible, national and European elected officials, through pedagogic campaigns which aim to demonstrate the incompatibility of certain systems of migration control and border surveillance with respect for the human rights of migrants.

Migreurop does not receive any public funds, neither national nor European⁴ – its main donors being private foundations (see II-The network’s composition/d), – and directs its campaigns to European institutions and governments through distribution of documents and press releases (see VII-Communication/a).

III – NETWORK COMPOSITION

a. Management bodies

The governance of the Migreurop network largely rests on the components, missions and functioning of the Board of Directors (BD), which is considered as the engine of the association. The BD is responsible for strategic decisions which go beyond the day-to-day management of the association (investments, decisions on thematic issues, political positions, directing human resources, etc.), which is entrusted to paid staff (2,75 full time equivalent employees) and the “Bureau” (six volunteer members elected by the BD). The BD members meet three times per year in the countries where the member associations are present. Between the meetings, the BD members communicate by email on a dedicated Migreurop mailing list (migreurop-ca@rezo.net).

The Bureau is in charge of management and political representation in the period between BD meetings. The Bureau members are in constant contact with the paid staff and meet every two months (in Paris or by videoconference) for the purpose of exchanging information on the day-to-day implementation of activities and to respond to the network’s urgent needs. At the same time, the Bureau members communicate by email on a dedicated Migreurop mailing list (migreurop-bureau@rezo.net) and its Parisian members are in constant contact with the paid staff.

The network’s management bodies were renewed at the last General Assembly (GA) that took place in Brussels on June 13 and 14, 2015. The next GA will take place in May 2017.

Migreurop’s BD comprises eighteen members, including four individual members, from six different countries:

- Associations: AMDH (Mauritania); Arci (Italy); Gisti (France), Fasti (France), Anafé (France), La Cimade (France); Sos Racismo (Spain); Ciré (Belgium), LDH (Belgium), CNCD 11.11.11 (Belgium); Barbed Wire Britain (United Kingdom); AMDH (Morocco); AME and Aracem (Mali)

- Individual members: Lydie Arbogast, Olivier Clochard, Sara Casella Colombeau and Yasmine Flitti

During its first meeting on June 14, 2015 in Brussels, the new BD elected as a President of the network Emmanuel Blanchard (Gisti, France), as well as the members of the Bureau, now comprising four representatives of associations and two individual members:

- Associations: Gisti (France), President; AMDH (Mauritania), Vice-President; Fasti (France) and Arci (Italy), cross-functional positions

- Individual members: Olivier Clochard, Secretariat; and Yasmine Flitti, Treasurer

In 2016, the Bureau of Migreurop met six times and the Board of directors three times, one of which through audioconference. Informal exchanges, self-training, sharing of information, tools and analyses were joined to the face-to-face meetings of the Board of directors: exchanges around the so-called "refugee crisis" on 8 April, local situations and political emergencies on 26 November, self-training on the network’s mapping tools on 9 April.

b. The team

The network’s coordination is provided by a team of three paid staff: Elisabeth Baudin – administrative and financial coordinator, part-time (since March 2013), Alessandra Capodanno (since September 2012) and Brigitte Espuche, who replaced Eva Ottavy in February 2015, as full-time operational coordinators. The coordination of the network and its activities is supported by the presence of interns (two a year, each time for a six-month period).
c. Members

Migreurop is currently composed of forty-seven organisations as well as fifty-five individual members, based in seventeen countries in Africa, the Middle East and Europe, as well as two observer members: the European Association of Human Rights (EADH) and Secours Catholique (France). Two individual members and an association member (Emmaüs Europe) joined the network in 2016.

IV – RESEARCH

a. Missions

Exploratory Field Missions

The Migreurop network has for several years been focussing on the Eastern borders of Europe, one of the key passageways migrants use to reach their destination.

Faced with changes to migrant routes and negotiations between Turkey and the EU, Bulgaria – which joined the EU in 2007 – has become a new European transit country for many exiles, especially Syrians. Indeed, as a result of the establishment or strengthening of security measures by national authorities (wall along the border with Turkey, systematic detention of migrants), the number of refugees and migrants initially fell at the start of 2014 only to then rise again by the end of the year. By the end of 2014, 11,000 people had applied for asylum in Bulgaria, compared to 8,000 in 2013 and 1,700 in 2012. In 2015, according to UNHCR, nearly 10,000 migrants were intercepted when they entered the country, almost the same number of people were arrested once in the country, and almost 10,000 people were intercepted as they were trying to leave the territory to enter Serbia. While the number of asylum seekers has never been so high (20,365 in 2015), at the time of the visit (March 2016), the capacity of the five reception centres was around 5,000 places and the number of people residing in them was around 1,000. Angela Merkel's announcement in September 2015 to host more migrants would have contributed to the decline in the filling rate of reception centres. According to UNHCR "there has been a decrease from 70-80 % in occupied beds to 20-25 % (...). Many people do not go through the process, by 2015, nearly 16,000 people have had their case closed."

With these observations in mind and eager to obtain more detailed information about the evolving situation for migrants within this transit country and on its borders, Migreurop sent out a fact-finding mission to Bulgaria and Serbia from 22 March to 2 April 2016. Two members of the "mapping" group Olivier Clochard and Lucie Bacon, participated in this mission with support from Nedialka Tchakalova, a locally-based volunteer from November 2015 to April 2016 (see below, “Sending volunteers on missions”), and in partnership with her host association, the Center for Legal Aid-Voice in Bulgaria (CLA).

Our delegation was refused entry to the closed centres for "security reasons". Our members were nevertheless able to interview staff in the centres Ovcha Kupel and Voenna Rampa (Sofia), intended for the reception of asylum seekers. In the latter, they were able to discreetly visit the living areas used by asylum seekers. However, access to other reception centres (Banya, Harmanli and Pastrogor) was denied.

This field mission allowed us to gain a better grasp of the situation for migrants in Bulgaria and make a series of observations which have been compiled in an internal report. It also allowed us to strengthen the existing partnership between Migreurop and the CLA (joint volunteer mission to Bulgaria, collaboration on the Frontexit campaign on the presence and action of Frontex on the Turkish-Bulgarian border, contribution to the 3rd edition of the Atlas des migrants de Migreurop in 2017).

Sending volunteers on missions

For nearly 10 years, thanks to the programmes run by the French association Echanges et Partenariats (member of the IPAM network, which is itself a member of Migreurop), the network regularly sends out young volunteers on the ground in order to strengthen and develop ties and partnerships with its members and partners, collect data about regions or specific subject areas linked to the work areas of the Migreurop network, and also to stimulate the involvement of younger generations thus enabling the transfer of skills and responsibilities to them within the group.

In 2016, six Migreurop volunteers were posted on field assignments:

Group n°16: Elsa Tyszler, a volunteer with member association Gadem, went to Rabat (Morocco) as part of the project Loujna Tounkaranké, for an assignment focusing on the Northern border of Morocco and the externalisation of Europe’s borders to Africa. Her mission ended in January 2016, after 11 months of field work.

After several field missions, in December 2015 she drafted a joint report (Gadem, La Cimade, APDHA, Migreurop) entitled: "Ceuta and Melilla: open-air sorting centres at the gateway to Africa".

Group n°17 (November 2015/April 2016):

Cécilia Fall, a volunteer with the Plateforme de services aux migrants (PSM - Platform for Services for Migrants), a Migreurop partner, went to Calais (France). Her mission was to assist with preparatory work ahead of several activist and cultural events taking place in Calais with the aim of informing the general public and raising awareness about the challenges and impact of current European migration policy on Calais and other gateways into Europe.

She made an explanatory video about the expulsions from the southern area of the Jungle of Calais in early 2016.

Louis Imbert, a volunteer with the association Malaga Acoge (member of the Federation Andalucia Acoge, itself a member of Migreurop), travelled to Malaga (Spain) to participate in a mission that follows on from Elsa Tyszler’s project in Morocco, but concentrates on the transfers of migrants from the enclaves of Ceuta and Melilla to the Spanish mainland, asylum offices and forced deportations.

He delivered a PREZI on "the migrant crisis" and has worked on updating the country factsheet for Spain (to be published in 2017).
Nausicaa Preiss, a volunteer with a Turkish association Mülteci-Der went to Izmir to take part in a mission looking at the situation of migrants within Turkish territory and on the borders of Turkey, specifically in the Aegean Sea, within the context of negotiations between the EU and Turkey, in support of the activities of the Watch the Med platform.

She made a video about the EU-Turkey statement and the situation of asylum seekers in Turkey (in French) and also drafted a country factsheet for Turkey (to be published in 2017).

Nedialka Tchalakova, a volunteer with our partner association Center for Legal Aid-Voice in Bulgaria went to Sofia (Bulgaria), where she took part in a mission analysing the impact of the country’s joining the bloc on migration issues and respect for the fundamental rights of persons in migrations situations. She participated in the joint field mission to Bulgaria.

Group n°18: (April 2016/January 2017): Florie Gaillard, went to Rabat (Morocco), where she worked with the Moroccan Association for Human Rights (AMDH - member of Migreurop) to plan Migreurop meetings in Rabat in November 2016, and specifically the 6th stage of the MBB exhibition, the first one held outside Europe (see below, VII-a and b).

The volunteers in groups 17 and 18 also made a series of posters and postcards on subjects related to their missions, which are available to all interested individuals and organisations.

b. The “hotspot approach"

The Migreurop network launched a research project from 2015 onwards with a view to opening up discussion about, the “hotspot approach”, developed by the EU as part of its migration agenda in May 2015 as a response to the inappropriately named "migrant crisis" on the one hand, and, on the other hand, the effects that can already be observed in some regions said to be "on the front line" in the fight against immigration. Part of the aim was also to shed light on abuses linked to this aspect of EU migration policies.

After setting up a public mailing list on “hotspots” in 2015, the Migreurop network sought to broaden the scope of its research in 2016 and organise the information gathered on the “hotspot approach” in Europe and beyond into a system”. In order to do this the network formed an editorial board covering several projects and publications.

As part of the work on monitoring the hotspot approach, a mission was also conducted in Mauritania by three members of the network – Emmanuel Blanchard (Gisti), Sara Prestianni (Arci) and Brigitte Espuche (Migreurop) – from 4 March to 9 March 2016.

The purpose of this mission, appended to an internal training session on data collection with the Loujna-Toukaranâ collective, was to gather information about the repercussions of the hotspot approach outside Europe, and especially in Africa (raids, new types of encampment, legislative reforms).

Thus, on 6 March 2016 a working meeting was arranged with members and partners of the network from Mali (AME), Mauritania (AMDH, CRIDEM), Niger (AEC), Senegal (REMIDEV) and France (La Cimade). Among the points addressed were: monitoring the EU-Africa action plan developed in November 2015 at La Valetta; insecurity as a major challenge for migrants, especially in the Sahel; Frontex’s presence in Africa; the modifications to migrant routes in light of the strengthened controls in the sub region; as well as detention in Mauritania and the sub-region and the nature/purpose of the Agadez centre in Niger and the Khartoum centre in Sudan.

This mission allowed us to update the register of camps operating in Mauritania with a view to publication of the 6th edition of Migreurop’s "Map of the Camps" (Carte des Camps), thanks to the collaboration of local journalists in particular.
A working group ("Externalisation – Africa") made up of members of Migreurop and the collective Loujna Tounkaranke also came into being following this meeting in order to enable tracking of signs of the externalisation of European migration policy to Africa through monthly skype meetings.

To support the process and lead the working group a Mauritanian Head of Mission was recruited for a period of 6 months (April/October 2016), by Migreurop and the Mauritanian Association for Human Rights (AMDH), with the specific aim of drafting several summary reports in the main negotiations taking place between the EU and Africa on migration issues, as well as thematic press reviews by country to supplement those of the partner organisation l’Observatoire Ouest-Africain des Migrations (West African Migration Observatory).

Furthermore, in May 2016, alongside the 2nd edition of the SABIR Festival in Pozzallo (Sicily), the Migreurop network had the opportunity to visit the local hotspot. For this visit, a delegation included Marie-Christine Vergiat (MEP GUE/NGL, France), Filippo Furri (Migreurop), Erasmo Palazzotto (Italian MP), and Franco Campanella (Italian Senator), both members of the Sinistra ecolologia e libertà/Sinistra Italian parties.

In July 2016, the network was thus able to perform a joint analysis of the "hotspot approach" thanks to the work of two members of the network who drafted a working paper, an English-language internal document, for use in deepening our knowledge and unearthing pathways for further analysis and capacity building for the project’s members and partners. This working document has seen the addition of an "Africa" section, in collaboration with AMDH Mauritania and our joint Head of Mission. The members and partners of the network have been able to take these considerations on board, notably through their expansion into tools and media for information and decoding and through international meetings on these issues (see VII-b and c).

V - MOBILISATION

a. The Close the Camps mobilisation

Since the GA in June 2015 and the Board Meeting in December of the same year, members of the network have been wanting to streamline our activities relating to the administrative detention of foreigners and combine them into a single working group, giving greater emphasis to the aim of closing the camps in the actions and communication surrounding this issue.

For this reason, in order to avoid spreading resources too thinly and a lack of coherence and visibility for our message, in 2016 a dedicated working group and list “Mobilisation Close the Camps” were set up and now include around twenty individuals. La Cimade and La Fasti have joined the coordination team, which has so far been led by Olivier Clochard, Alessandra Capodanno (Migreurop) and Laure Blondel (Anafé).

During their first meeting on 2 March 2016, this group decided to concentrate on the following topics: the externalisation of detention/encampment; internment and the rationale of record keeping for

6 Associations that are members of the network: AME (Mali), Ciré (Belgium), LDH Belgium, SOS Racismo (Spain), Fasti (France), La Cimade (France), Arci (Italy), AMDH Mauritania, Barbed Wire Britain (United Kingdom).

Individuals who are members of the network: Bénédicte Michalon, Elsa Tyszler, Louise Tassin, Lydie Arbogast, Morgane Dujmovic, Olivier Clochard.

Members of the "mapping" group: Laurence Pillant (geographer, Telemme), Eva Spiekermann, Lucie Bacon (geographer, Migrinter/Telemme), Olivier Pissoat (geographer, ADESS/Passages, CNRS).

7 It would still be desirable for other members to contribute to supporting the coordination of big projects on confinement and ideally, these should be non-French and if possible non-European members in order for coordination to be representative of one of the focal points if the working group, i.e. confinement outside of Europe.
tracking and sorting migrants on the borders of the European Union; the other methods of exclusion, coming in various forms that serve as an antechamber for incarceration.

In the short term, the aim is not to set up a new campaign but rather to reorganise activities that are currently under way/planned, and take the time to think through a full campaign that could be launched at a later date.

These changes were officially communicated on 23 May 2016 (see the communiqué "After the Open Access Now campaign: the mobilisation Close the Camps" and the updated introduction to the Close the Camps project).

Alongside this work, members of the group have devoted their time to updating the information entered in the database to which the website www.en.closethecamps.org is linked.

This work has made it possible to update the data displayed on the site. This was completed at the end of February 2016. More specifically, the country factsheets and the lists of active centres in 25 countries (20 member states in the EU and/or Schengen area, 2 Balkan states and 3 countries in the Mediterranean Basin) have been updated. This update was also an opportunity to add new context descriptions for about a dozen countries (Germany, Cyprus, Egypt, France, Greece, Italy, Lebanon, Morocco and Western Sahara), which are intended as background information to supplement the quantitative data provided and correct/explain any bias arising out of the extent of available information.

The second part of this work involved further supplementing and verifying the data as part of the preparation of the 6th edition of Migreurop's Map of the Camps. Being the group’s main goal for 2016, the Map was published in October 2016 and is listed below among the network’s publications (see VI-b). An Arabic version of the website also went live in November 2016, thanks to support from specialist service providers and to the involvement of members of AMDH Morocco: www.ar.closethecamps.org.

Throughout 2016, members of the group also contributed to publications released by the network. Aside from the Map of the Camps, Migreurop's Brief No 4 on the hotspots - a report on the privatisation of internment - was also published and production of the 3rd edition of the Atlas (see below, VI-b) was set in motion. Finally, the group led the organisation of several awareness-raising initiatives, including an international meeting on encampment which was held in Rabat on 26 November 2016 (see below, VI-c).

b. The Frontexit campaign

Frontexit is an international inter-association campaign to defend the rights of migrants on the external borders of the European Union.

Co-coordinated by the Migreurop and Euromed Rights networks since the end of 2015, it brings together 19 associations, researchers and individuals from civil society both north and south of the Mediterranean (Belgium, Cameroon, France, Italy, Mali, Morocco, Mauritania, international organisations, European and Euro-African networks).

The aim of Frontexit is twofold: informing a wide audience about the human rights abuses brought about by Frontex operations and reporting these abuses to the political representatives who are directly involved.

In more concrete terms, through these actions of research, litigation, raising awareness and lobbying of politicians, the campaign makes several demands: transparency as to the mandate, responsibilities and actions of Frontex; suspension of those activities of the agency that have been identified as contrary to human rights; cancellation of the regulation that created Frontex, if it can be shown that its mandate is incompatible with respect for fundamental rights.

8 Schengen: Germany, Austria, Belgium, Bulgaria, Croatia, Denmark, Spain, Estonia, Finland, France, Greece, Italy, Latvia, Lithuania, Malta, Norway, Netherlands, United Kingdom, Romania, Sweden; Balkans: Bosnia-Herzegovina, Moldova; Mediterranean Basin: Morocco, Western Sahara, Israel.
Ostensibly in response to the so-called "migrant crisis" in 2015, the role of the European agency for surveillance of the external borders of the EU, Frontex, has been bolstered as part of the fight against so-called clandestine immigration. The European agency was thus granted greater means and prerogatives in 2016, having its mandate reinforced in September 2016 with an increased budget, geographic extension of its mandate (Member States) and broader scope (fight against terrorism), a significant role in the hotspots and a stronger hand in the area of returns.

In 2016, the members of Frontexit essentially focussed on Frontex's new mandate. As part of this work, the following items were published:

- Four press releases:
  - "More dangerous, more opaque, more powerful: MEPs must say NO to the new Frontex!", 1 July 2016
  - "The new mandate of Frontex agency : The EU obsessed with waging a war against migrants and refugees", 7 July 2016
  - "A reinforced Frontex agency EU turns a deaf ear to NGO's warnings", 22 September 2016

- A letter to MEPs to warn them of the risks inherent in this revamped status

- An internal pamphlet on Frontex’ new mandate and its potential ramifications

The members of Frontexit also participated in a collective mobilisation against the vote for the new Frontex in front of the European Parliament called by the collective "Pour une autre politique migratoire" ("For a different migration policy") on 5 July 2016, under the banner "Protest against the new European border-guards and coast-guards agency!"

With the European regulation on interception at sea within the framework of joint operations by Frontex having been incorporated into the new mandate of the agency, Frontexit has consummated its legal and political underpinnings in this area. Furthermore, in light of current affairs in Europe, the EU's negotiations with "third-party" countries and the strong involvement of Frontex in this, members of the campaign are finalising the updates to working documents on the agency’s cooperation with non-member states of the EU more broadly and with West African States in particular.

c. International partnerships

The Boats4People coalition

The network is working on the rights of migrants at sea through its participation in the coalition Boats4People (B4P), which came about in 2011 to call governments to account with regard to the thousands of exiles who perish on the borders of the European Union every year in their attempts to reach it. The network is currently involved in the Boats4People coalition through its members, including La Cimade and La Fasti who have led the steering committee together for the past year.

Following a joint mission (ARCI, Migreurop, La Cimade, B4P) to Italy (Milan, Rome, Catania, Syracuse, Pozzallo) on surveillance, monitoring and rescue operations in the Sicilian Channel in November 2015, a decision was made to focus the coalition’s efforts in 2016 on the issue of missing migrants and bereavement.

The following projects were undertaken in pursuit of this aim:
A Spanish translation of the Pro Asyl guide, intended to help sailors take action and assist migrants in distress at sea an internal mission report on the mission to Italy. It also fed into a public report, published on 2 June 2016, based on the observations made over the course of three field missions to Calais, Ceuta and Melilla and Italy, carried out in 2015 by La Cimade, in partnership with ARCI, Gadem, Migreurop, APDHA and Boats4People, and entitled "European Border: No Entry?" (in French, Frontières européennes : défense d'entrer?)

a brochure for raising awareness about the rights of migrants at sea based on the template of one made for the Frontexit campaign, entitled “Dead or lost at sea - The Mediterranean, once a sea now a border” (in French, “Morts et disparus en mer – La Méditerranée, une mer devenue frontière”), published in November 2016

an information tool intended for the families of migrants lost or dead at sea dealing with the question of bereavement and the handling of bodies in Italy, based on information gathered during the November 2015 mission to Italy (forthcoming)

The Watch the Med platform

The Watch the Med platform (WtM) is a Mediterranean observation project formulated by civil society as a response to governments’ failure to act in the face of thousands being shipwrecked at sea. It is an online platform that aims to map and document the violations of migrant rights in the Mediterranean Sea. Thanks to collaboration between migrants, researchers and activist groups, the platform intends to put pressure on the authorities to enforce the law of the sea.

Migreurop wishes to continue supporting the work of Watch The Med (WtM), especially through the following actions:
- involvement of a member of the steering committee of Boats4People in the work of its editorial board
- direct collaboration on the exchange of information and contacts, follow up and analysis of cases of violations of the rights of migrants at sea
- collaboration with Frontexit, notably on maritime operations of the Frontex agency
- sending volunteers on the ground to support the work of WtM or of Alarmphone, an emergency number for migrants in distress at sea (as with Nausicaa Preiss, sent to Turkey, in 2016).

The working group "Externalisation – Africa"

From 2015 onwards, Migreurop launched an investigation into the abuses arising from the “hotspot approach” developed by the EU as part of its European agenda in May 2015.

After focusing on sorting and encampment in Europe, the network turned its attention to the externalisation of this approach and to measures that strengthen the repressive power of “third-party” States (notably African countries) in exchange for funds destined to prevent people – presumed to be "economic migrants" and therefore undesirable – from leaving their regions of origin (Trust fund for Africa from the Conclusions of the Euro-African Summit in La Valetta in November 2015).

On 6 March 2016, at a meeting in Nouakchott (Mauritania), Migreurop launched a working group on the signs of the externalisation of European migration policies to Africa (impediments to freedom of movement, encampment, practices inside places of deprivation of liberty, negotiation of agreements with the agency Frontex, the EU and its Member States, etc.). The group is composed of members of Migreurop and the Loujna Tounkaranké collective.

Namely in order to achieve this, the network recruited a Mauritanian Head of Mission in partnership with the Mauritanian Association for Human Rights (see above, “The hotspot approach”).

During 2016, this "Externalisation - Africa" group, initiated by Migreurop, met almost every month. At the end of 2016 it became a joint group Migreurop/Loujna Tounkaranké with the aim of gathering information about the situation of African countries (mainly West African countries), through the work of monitoring/gathering and systematising information on subjects of mutual interest (EU-Africa cooperation - especially post La Valletta, militarisation of borders, encampment, etc.).

VI – RAISING AWARENESS

a. The exhibition Moving Beyond Borders

The Moving Beyond Borders (MBB) exhibition, coordinated by Sara Prestianni and Olivier Clochard (individual network members) has its origins in 2014. It arose from the intersection of several of Migreurop’s working areas, as well as from the cartographic and photographic creations linked to this work. The exhibition was brought to life by “Etrange Miroir”. It is interactive, features multiple media and is accessible to all. The exhibition has two aims. It seeks, firstly, to combat prejudices and preconceptions about migrants by bringing a better understanding of the “perils of migration” to a wider audience, and secondly to denounce the policies that exclude exiles deemed undesirable in European territory. This exhibition is thus an awareness-raising tool aimed at the “general public”, from the dual perspective of both the activist and the artist.

Following the official opening of the exhibition in Brussels June 2015 and the launch in Calais in December of the same year, in 2016 the exhibition travelled to France, Italy and Morocco.

From 21 January to 6 February 2016, MBB was hosted at the Anis-Gras – le lieu de l’autre, in Arcueil, a southern suburb of Paris, as part of the series L’art, l’autre et l’hospitalité (Art, the other and hospitality).

Several French members of Migreurop, contributed to facilitating this series and this 3rd stop on the exhibition’s itinerary (information panels, conferences and debates). One of the highlights was the roundtable discussion La cartographie à l’épreuve de la représentation des flux migratoires (Mapping put to the test – depicting migrant flows) (see below, VI-c). According to estimates, at least 800 people visited the exhibition while it was stationed in Arcueil.

From 10 to 15 May 2016, the exhibition took to the stage at Pozzallo (Sicily) as part of the 2nd edition of the Sabir festival of Mediterranean culture, promoted by several Italian associations, including Migreurop members Arci and Asgi, in conjunction with the local council.

The exhibition was officially opening on 12 May together with the photographic exhibition One Way – Senza voltarci indietro by Stefano Schirato, supported by Caritas Italy, about exiles on the ”Balkan roads. According to estimates by the festival staff and the local council MBB was seen by almost 1000 people during its residence in Pozzallo.

This stage of the exhibition also gave us a chance to conduct a site visit to the Pozzallo hotspot, described in the ”Research“ section of the report (IV-c).

MBB was hosted in Poitiers (venue La Cave) from 13 June to 2 July as part of celebrations for the 30-year anniversary of the research lab Migrinter, a partner of the network, and in conjunction with the international colloquium Penser les migrations pour repenser la société (Thinking about migration to rethink society).

The festival programme included two official launch events specially dedicated to the opening of MBB, on 22 and 23 June. Two guided tours of the exhibition were also arranged for groups of students, including one group of hearing-impaired pupils. Researchers and doctoral students in addition to teachers also helped to prepare these visits and accompany the young participants and answer their questions.

According to the estimates from the organisers just under 500 people – mainly students and academics – visited MBB during this stage.

The 4th stop on the exhibition's trail, which took it outside of Europe for the first time was in Rabat at the end of 2016. From 18 November to 2 December 2016, to give the exact dates, the exhibition was hosted by the Fondation Orient-Occident (FOO), a key centre for current thinking on how migrants are received located in the heart of the Moroccan capital.

This stage was organised in collaboration with AMDH Maroc and Gadem, Moroccan members of the network and with the support of Florie Gaillard, a locally-based Migreurop volunteer (Group 18, April 2016-January 2017). Its aim was to support the work of organisations in Morocco dedicated to defending the rights of migrants and promoting living as a global community ("le vivre-ensemble").

An informal opening was held on 16 November with a number of facilitated events, screenings and debates, followed by interventions from young boys who had experienced life as migrants and activists including women involved in gender issues. In addition, an event celebrating art and activism around issues raised in the exhibition was organised on 25 November. All of the Migreurop board members were present alongside several representatives from the Etrange Miroir collective, many local activists, staff and members of the public from the FOO. The evening ended with a concert of Afro-Gnawa music, organised in partnership with the association Racines.

This initiative also made it possible to mark the launch of the 6th edition of the Map of the Camps/la Carte des Camps by Migreurop, now available in Arabic for the first time.

Around 750 people visited the exhibition during this stage, and close to 200 people took part in the events.

Thanks to its didactic approach, over the course of its journey, this exhibition has helped "the general public" have a better understanding of migrant trajectories and the hurdles they experience. Also, by means of conferences, facilitation, workshops and debates MBB has set in motion an intersectoral dialogue between associations, researchers, activists, students, exiles, citizens-in-solidarity and others.

Throughout the year, multilingual tools have been designed with the help of Etrange Miroir and Kareron, in order to accompany the itinerant exhibition on its journey. These include technical specifications, an inventory, installation and operating instructions (French, English, Spanish, Italian and Arabic), a 2-minute video teaser (French and English), a flyer and a poster (French, English, Spanish, Italian and Arabic), a press pack (French and English), a set of royalty-free photographs from the exhibition and a Facebook page.

A “mediation booklet” was also produced, in English and French. This booklet is intended for staff and volunteers working for organisations that host MBB for a time, in order to encourage them to use this tool. It is accompanied by “tour itineraries” ("fiches visites"), based on pathways "tested" in the various places the exhibition has been hosted since the inauguration of MBB in June 2015.

All of these tools, as well as guidelines for additional routes ("fiches parcours supplémentaires") and media for the preparation of facilitation and mediation around MBB, an be accessed in an online folder (www.hubic.com/mbb.expo@gmail.com/Migreuropmbb2016) which is made available to all organisations that host the exhibition.

b. The meetings

The round-table discussion Mapping put to the test – depicting migrant flows (La cartographie à l'épreuve de la représentation des flux migratoires)

On 20 January, to mark the official opening of the MBB exhibition at Anis Gras-Le lieu de l’Autre, in Arcueil, Migreurop organised a public meeting about maps as a depiction of migratory movements, combining challenges in both form (flows, stocks) and substance (coherence and availability of data). With members of Migreurop's mapping group as moderators, this meeting was attended by about fifty people.

The international meeting Encampment, detention and sorting: desolation and mobilisation on the borders of the Union Held on 26 November in Rabat, this meeting, was organised with the support of AMDH, Gadem and Florie Gaillard (locally-based volunteer). It coincided with the MBB exhibition’s residency at the Fondation Orient-Occident, and also with the release of the Map of the Camps/ Carte des Camps and the launch of the Arabic version of the Close the Camps website. It allowed us to take stock of the forms of deprivation of liberty and exclusion that foreigners are subjected to in both Europe (Italy, United Kingdom) and Africa (Morocco, Western Sahara, Mauritania), to condemn the rights violations that they give rise to and also to raise the profile of existing actions and mobilisations in support of migrants, especially those led by migrants themselves and was a chance to think about collective action against all sites for the detention of foreign migrants. More than 150 people, mostly members of Moroccan associations and migrant associations active in Morocco, participated in this meeting along with international activists and academics.

Although it was not possible to launch the Arabic language version of the Close the Camps website at this time due to the situation in Morocco, it is important to highlight that many of the interventions – from guest speakers, questions/comments from the audience – centred on the reality faced by many foreigners imprisoned within the territory of the Kingdom of Morocco and in Western Sahara.

c. Publications

2016 was shaped by the network’s desire to disseminate the findings, analysis and demands arising from the research conducted as widely and possible, and by the creation of media for self-guided learning and tools for informing others and raising awareness. These include the following publications:

The analysis article by Frontexit, “A European border-guards and coast-guards agency. Concerns about the proposed mandate for a “new Frontex”.”

In order to better "defend the Schengen area", in December 2015 the European Commission submitted a proposal to strengthen Frontex' mandate, which on 16 September 2016 became the European border and coast-guard agency. Under this new form, it has been allocated greater means and prerogatives and its mandate has been broadened in both substance (fight against irregular immigration, cross-border crime and terrorism) and territory (external borders and member States). Faced with an agency that is more powerful than ever, the members of the Frontexit campaign drafted in April 2016 this analysis of the new proposed mandate and its impact on the fundamental rights of migrants.

The joint report, European Border. No Entry? (In French, Frontières européennes. Défense d’entrer ?)

This observer report was published in June 2016 following the three field missions to Italy and the Spanish-Moroccan and Franco-British borders organised in 2015 by La Cimade in partnership with Migreurop, the Boats4People coalition, Gadem and APDHA. It aims to decode the mechanisms of control and the rationale behind them applied in three emblematic sites, Calais, Ceuta and Melilla and Pozzallo in Sicily, based on field observations. The report was presented at a "demystification day" organised by La Cimade on the challenges at the borders of Europe.

The 6th edition of the Map of Camps by Migreurop, Scenes of desolation at the EU borders

Produced by Nicolas Lambert based on data available (Close the Camps database), the 6th edition of the Carte des Camps was published in October 2016 in French, English, Spanish and, for the first time, Arabic. The design work on the dust jacket of the Map was updated in collaboration with Guillaume Moitessier, who also contributed to the set design for the MBB exhibition. The new Map is accompanied by an introductory text that reconsiders broad trends since the previous editions was published, examining their continuity in some areas and taking new directions in others and a second text covering the use of police stations. This edition confirmed the fall in the number of camps, already observed at the end of 2015, together with a significant increase in the total known capacity of closed camps, largely in non-member countries of the EU.
Migreurop Brief no. 4, Hotspots at the heart of the archipelago of camps

Research into the "hotspot approach" conducted since 2015 has informed the Brief no. 4 from the network. Concentrating on the European dimension of this approach, this Brief brings the message home with photographs by Sara Prestianni and a map. It is also the first Brief in the collection to display the new design work by Guillaume Moitessier.

Although the hotspots are generally presented as a key component of the EU’s response to the "migrant crisis", this Brief aims to highlight the fact that for the creators if what is essentially a restrictive European asylum policy, any substantial increase in the number of exiles reaching the EU constitutes a "crisis". As conflicts multiply on the Europe’s doorstep, far from arranging for reception and protection that might keep pace with the challenges and needs of the situation, member states have set to work blocking off the access routes used by exiles.

The 6th edition of the Carte des Camps/Map of the Camps and the Note sur les hotspots/Brief on the hotspots (French/English) were launched together on 26 October 2016 through the publication of an op-ed entitled "Europe: united against Refugees" ("Une Europe unie contre les réfugiés"), following the referendum in Hungary on 2 October 2016 (see below, VII-b and the Annex "Migreurop dans les médias"/

The report Migrant detention in the European Union: a thriving business

Published on 27 November in French and English, this report, drafted by Lydie Arbogast, was produced with the support of the Rosa-Luxemburg-Stiftung – bureau de Bruxelles.

By presenting the various facets of the privatisation of the detention of foreigners in the EU and by analysing the practices in several European countries, (France, United Kingdom and Italy), this study lays bare the problems with "sub-contracting", both in terms of the living conditions and treatment detained migrants are subjected to and in terms of the symbolic and political consequences of these decisions.

The report was first launched in Paris on 11 October 2016, as part of the meeting "Privatisation des camps d’étrangers : un marché juteux ?" (Privatising migrant camps: a lucrative business) organised by the Observatoire de l’enfermement des étrangers (OEE).

The 3rd edition of the Atlas des Migrants en Europe

A working group was formed in 2016 and met on 22 January, 26 May and 6 December. A preliminary overview of the outline for this publication was presented at a meeting of the board in Paris in April 2016.

VII – COMMUNICATION

a. Press releases

In 2016, Migreurop published twelve press releases. These communiqués are listed below in chronological order. Most of them were written in collaboration with other associations.

b. Migreurop in the media

En 2016, thirty articles – in France or internationally – mentioned the network’s activities or quoted its members’ analysis (for the full list, see the annex « Migreurop in the media »).

Migreurop’s media presence concerns mainly written and online press – most often at the national scale, but also in local outlets –, but it is also present in the audio-visual media, with more than several programs and/or reports concerning Migreurop’s work throughout 2015.

The Réseau Éducation Sans Frontières (RESF) radio broadcast on Fréquence Paris Plurielle also offers a monthly space to share the network’s observations and concerns.

Migreurop’s analysis and its awareness-raising tools also got a significant media coverage.

The opinion piece A Europe united against refugees – published after the referendum of 2 October 2016 in Hungary to launch the 6th Map of Camps and the Brief “Hotspots at the heart of the archipelago of camps” – was published by the following media: Libération (France), Cridem (Mauritania), Jet d’Encre (Switzerland), Blog Migrados of El País (Spain), New Internationalist (United-Kingdom), Efemeryda Ton Sundakton (Greece) and Open Democracy (see the Annex “Migreurop in the media” for further details).

This text is available on line in English, Bulgarian, Croatian, French, Greek, Italian, Macedonian, Serbian and Spanish.

This diverse media coverage illustrates the expertise as well as the legitimacy of the Migreurop network in documenting and decoding European migration policies and their impact in Europe and beyond.

c. Websites, social networks, mailing lists

To facilitate exchange of information and the distribution of its analyses and observations, the Migreurop network has created several digital tools: four websites, three Facebook accounts, a Twitter handle, as well as six open mailing lists.

> The websites
- The Migreurop network website: www.migreurop.org [FR, EN, ES, IT]
- The Frontexit campaign website: www.frontexit.org [FR, EN]
- The Open Access Now campaign website: closethecamps.org/open-access-now/ [FR, EN, IT]
- The dynamic mapping website on foreigner imprisonment: www.closethecamps.org [FR, EN, ES, AR]

> The social networks
- Facebook: Migreurop (7,531 fans) | Frontexit (3,500 fans) | Close the Camps (1,267 fans)
- Twitter: Migreurop (6,012 followers)

> The mailing-lists
- migreurop@rezo.net – so-called “general” mailing list that covers the range of Migreurop’s working areas (1,551 subscribers)
  - migreurop-enfermement@rezo.net – on the imprisonment of foreign nationals (163 subscribers)
  - migreurop-frontex@rezo.net – on Frontex (254 subscribers)
  - migreurop-read@rezo.net – on readmission agreements and other forms of deportation (i.e. « voluntary returns ») (177 subscribers)
- migreurop-est@rezo.net – on migratory dynamics in Eastern Europe (74 subscribers)
- migreurop-hotspots@rezo.net – on the implementation of hotspot approach (64 subscribers)
ANNEXE 1

Migreurop in the media

A number of television and press media from Europe and beyond have solicited Migreurop in the context of reporting on areas of concern to our network, and have highlighted the activities of Migreurop.
